POSSUMS ARE IMPORTANT FOR OUR ENVIRONMENT

If you're wondering about this photo -- Is this a possum in a living room? Yes, it is! In fact, this photo was taken by Barb in her living room after her silly dog brought this possum into her home. Yes, that's the same Barb you often speak with when you call into Penny Power. But don't worry -- everyone was completely safe. It's not ideal for a dog to bring a possum into a home. But in fact, according to National Geographic, our world is a better and safer place because of possums. It was a surprise to us that possums can eat up to 2,000 ticks in one night along with other bugs that could carry disease. Snakes are a delicious snack for a possum, even the venomous ones. Possums are generally nocturnal. But sometimes they are out during the day, especially if a nursing mommy is searching for food or if they have been frightened in some way. So if you do happen to see a possum, remember they are quietly doing their job making our outdoor spaces safer for us to enjoy. And just so you don't worry, this little guy was safely returned to his outdoor home.

GARDEN TIPS

The "Buzz" about Native Plants

By Carol Schroding,
 Gardening Enthusiast and former owner of Northeast Native Perennials

Continuing our discussion on grasses, I wanted to focus this week on Rushes.

There only seems to be one main rush native to our area and also native to most of the U.S. If you have a moist or wet area, Soft Rush (Juncus effusus) is a must have! It is the most often cultivated and will tolerate full sun to light shade.

Soft Rush occurs naturally along lake and pond shores, marshes, open woods and swamps. The stems are bright to dark green and tubular. At the base, the stems are about a sixteenth of an inch wide and gradually taper up to a point at the tip. The flowers bloom from a slit near the tip. Occasionally a plant can be found with kinky or corkscrew-like stems. There are several of these kinked cultivars on the market, but only one called 'Unicorn' is known to be of North American origin.

There are a few other Pennsylvania native Rushes, but mainly to other parts of the state. Grass-leaved Rush (Juncus biflorus), Pennsylvania Rush (Juncus gymnocarpus), Narrow-Panicled Rush (Juncus brevicaudatus) are a few of the other Rushes native to the state.

Don't be afraid to mix Soft Rush with other perennials that prefer similar conditions, such as Cardinal Flower, Turtlehead, Spiderwort, Swamp Milkweed and many more. It is such a different texture and form than most other perennials, the combination is very beautiful.

Next week: Sedges for every garden!

PET OF THE WEEK

BUBBLES, SQUEAKS & SKIPPER

Meet Bubbles, Squeaks and Skipper!

I used to think it was just a silly rumor. You know, that whole "black cats are bad luck" thing? But as I watch other kittens get adopted time and again instead of us, I worry there's something to it. What else could explain why we haven't been snapped up yet? Let me explain how lucky you'd be to share a home with one (or all!) of us!

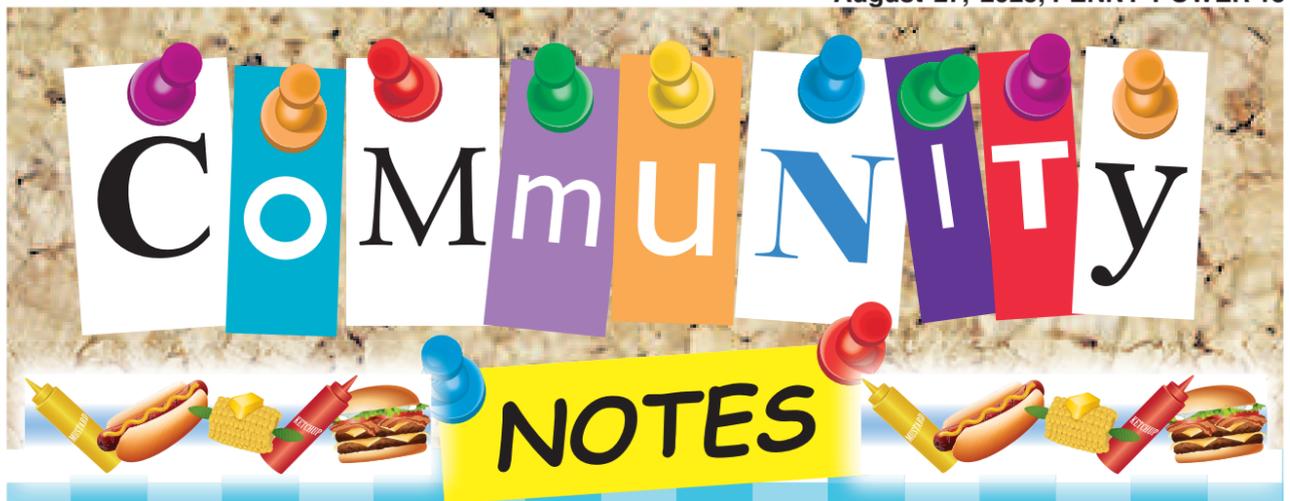

I'm Squeaks, the dapper kitten in the front. I'm the spokesperson for our little trio, as I was the sibling who was saved first (by two whole days, thank you very much), which makes me most qualified for this role. First, a bit about me: I'm a sweet and playful little girl with beautiful silky black fur that has faint black stripes. I really love attention and will purr like crazy when you rub my ears and give me affection. I love wrestling with my siblings and thrive on playtime and snuggle time!

Next up is Bubbles, the token male of our bunch. He's obsessed with toy mice and loves attention as long as you don't expect him to sit still too long (I swear, that boy has the attention span of a guppy). Head rubs bring on big purrs and he loves other cats!

Skipper is a sweet, shy, beautiful little black panther. She loves to play with me and Bubbles, and it helps her feel more confident to hang out with fellow kitties. She gets a little nervous when you reach for her until she remembers how much she loves ear and head rubs, then holy deafening purr! You might need ear plugs.

See? We're perfect little companions who have been patiently waiting for our forever homes. The only thing unlucky about us is that we haven't met our people yet. Will you be the human to change our luck forever? We sure hope so!

To meet Bubbles, Squeaks, and Skipper, go to straycatblues.org or call 215-631-1851. Stray Cat Blues is a 501(c)(3) non-profit that's been rescuing area cats for more than 25 years. In addition to fostering and adopting friendly cats and kittens, we Trap, Neuter and Return (TNR) feral cats.
