Acknowledgement

TASC Legal and Social Justice Services acknowledge the Traditional Custodians throughout Australia and their continuing connection to land, sea and community.

We pay respects to all First Nation's peoples and to their elders past, present and emerging.

We acknowledge the Jagera, Yuggera and Ugarapul people of Ipswich, the Jagera, Giabal and Jarowair people of Toowoomba, the Mandandanji people of Roma, the Bigambul people of Goondiwindi and the Kambuwal people of Stanthorpe, the Taribelang Bunda, Gooreng Gooreng, Gurang, and Bailai Peoples of Hervey Bay and Bundaberg, The Wakka Wakka people of Cherbourg and the Gubbi Gubbi people of Gympie.

We acknowledge our staff and volunteers that contribute to supporting our communities, their legal rights and continuing to enable justice.

In 2022, TASC purchased "Country" by Charleville based First Nations artist Eric Kent.

"It is a very spiritual painting that was inspired by the lands of my country. The hills, ranges and creeks that move across the land. The blues and the greens are the colours of the waterholes and lakes that are left when the waters stop flowing and the yellow and orange colours are representative of the flowering wattle, mulga and gidgee that encompass my country."

Mr Kent passed away shortly after completing this work.

Theme

As we reflect back across the year on our challenges, achievements and how TASC has adapted, and continues to adapt to a rapidly changing world, the theme of this year's annual report becomes resoundingly clear: hope.

While there is much to be pessimistic about as our society navigates the wicked problems of housing affordability, cost of living, increasing frequency of natural disasters due to climate change and an increasingly divisive political and policy landscape, we also have hope.

Our optimism stems from several sources. We draw inspiration from the empowerment of our clients - seeing them reclaim their agency, often simply by being heard and validated.

We admire the remarkable resilience of our client base, who consistently rise above the daunting challenges life throws their way.

Equally uplifting is the dedication, kindness and expertise of the TASC team, the positive impact of our programs on individuals and the broader community, and the remarkable adaptability shown by the communities we've engaged with.

Moreover, we are heartened to note the growing emphasis the business and investment world, both in Australia and internationally, is placing on Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) factors. Their growing alignment with the UN's Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) signals a shift towards a more sustainable and inclusive global community where human beings and the environment are given the prominence they deserve.

In essence, while hope stands as one of TASC's core values, it isn't just a sentiment. It's a driving force. It propels us forward, prompting reflection on our achievements, areas for growth, and guiding our strategies to adapt and thrive in a changing world. Through it all, we remain committed to fostering a community where hope is not just a word but a lived experience.

Our Cover

With this year's theme of hope and to represent the regions in which we operate, this year we experimented with generative AI to create the cover artwork.

The image we used was generated with a prompt focussing on a south west Queensland landscape, in a folk art style and with a tone of optimism.

In this year's Annual Report we have also utilised generative AI for some of the images, particularly those illustrating our case studies, as our clients' confidentiality is of utmost importance to us.

Chairperson's report

Hearing about the excellent work done by our TASC team has been a source of real inspiration to those of us on the Board of TASC. Along with the affirming client feedback from across our regions we have heard stories of how our team members have supported people through significant hardship. It is a privilege for all of us at TASC to be able to play a part in enabling people to overcome barriers and preserve their legal and human rights.

The highlights for me from the past year include:

- Expansion of services to reach more individuals and families across a broader geographical area;
- Seeing the willingness of our people to tackle some tough assignments;
- Participation in a wider variety of activities within the community sector leading to deeper understanding, cooperation and impact.

I would like to thank our external funding partners at Commonwealth and State level who make it possible for us to deliver services for free to many people across our regions.

We also extend our gratitude to colleagues in other agencies who help us with referrals and advice. Our team is supported by volunteers and pro-bono professionals who make it possible to extend our services in areas our clients would otherwise find difficult to access.

Personally, I want to acknowledge the enormous effort put in by our employees at TASC. There is never a dull moment. Demand for services remains high and teams have been working to capacity for most of the year. To Frances and the team, thank you for your tenacity and compassion.

Finally, I extend my thanks to my colleagues on the TASC Board who have given freely of their time and expertise. This year we welcomed new Director, Ann-Marie Johnston, who has taken on the role of Treasurer. I say a special thank you to retiring Directors, Alison Kennedy and Ross Morgan whose contribution will be remembered with much appreciation.

Looking ahead, please continue to support us in whatever way you can. We are excited about the challenge this coming year of developing some new strategies to empower people to take action on social justice issues affecting the communities we serve.

Chair, TASC National Ltd

CEO's report

The team at TASC have truly been doing some exceptional work supporting members of the community in the face of the increasing pressures particularly around housing, cost of living and the associated legal and mental health issues that emerge as a result of these pressures.

As we have focused on consolidation, managing the COVID disruption to the workforce and managing ourselves within this disruption, we have also successfully commenced new programs and focus areas in response to community needs. Mind My Legals provides pathways for those experiencing mental health issues with increased access to legal support. In a formal partnership with Darling Downs Health Service we established a Mental Health Justice Partnership with an integrated model of a TASC social worker and solicitor being available to take referrals from allied health professionals, primarily with a focus on hospital social workers and those working in the Adult Mental Health Unit. We extended the scope to Community Care Units and Baillie Henderson hospital as the program progressed. With timely and supported wrap around responses we assist the recovery journey for people struggling with issues linked to their mental health. This new program complements the well established work we have been undertaking in the mental health advocacy arena with Health Department funding in Toowoomba.

Our Redress Scheme work is well embedded and the workers have been providing compassionate support and counselling responses to people who have experienced institutional child sexual abuse as they assist them with their applications for redress.

Our social justice and tenancy advocates are responding to increased calls for assistance given the changing landscape around NDIS and assisting people with knowing how to navigate and respond to the complexity of access within the system. With our advocates well established now in 3 locations in the Wide Bay Burnett area, as well as the locations we have traditionally operated from, our expanded services are responsive to the local community needs as our staff are from the local community and familiar with their region's support systems and the uniqueness of their particular geographical catchments.

With a focus on being of service where we need to be we continue to operate our remote offices in Goondiwindi and Roma offering face to face legal appointments and phone appointments as well as remote appointments from our Toowoomba and Ipswich office locations. A client satisfaction snapshot in May 2023 revealed high satisfaction results for ease of access to our centre reflecting our strategic decision to continue with a range of access options, inclusive of face-to-face, telephone or outreach. The high satisfaction level with 'listened to my legal problem' & 'helped me understand how to deal with my legal problem' & 'information and resources received' indicate that TASC is providing effective legal services and is committed to good client outcomes. Even when faced with staffing shortages, the focus has always been on providing good quality legal service reflective of our strategic goal.

The core focus of our legal work remains in the areas of Family Law, Domestic Violence, minor Criminal and Civil matters, our Disability Law Program and our Rural Women's Outreach Service which has been expanded and strengthened in the past 12 months.

Our focus on growing services to support seniors has been realised. With a generous increase in funding from the Queensland Government for our Seniors Legal and Support Service we now have a team of social workers and solicitors based in our Ipswich office expanding our coverage area out to include not only the Ipswich metro area, but also the Ipswich hinterland (see map 5, page 16). Sadly the abuse of our seniors in the communities we support is a growing concern with inheritance impatience and living pressures often being driving factors in causing this serious harm to those who deserve care, honour, respect and support at this time in their lives. Our dedicated and passionate team are determined to support our seniors to feel safe and valued within our community.

As we continue to flex to the new challenges and demands for service I wish to thank all the hardworking team here at TASC. Our client engagement workers meet and greet people each day who are anxious and distressed, our intake workers listen to their needs and assess the most appropriate avenues for us to provide support and our team of workers create viable options and solutions to the troubles people are facing. Supported and guided by our Board and all our other volunteers who work alongside us we will continue to be there for the community.

CEO, TASC National Ltd

The year ahead

As we enter the new financial year at TASC, our focus is significantly directed towards adapting to the prevailing societal trends, not only in our service region but also on a broader scale, encompassing national and state perspectives.

A critical issue at hand is the ongoing housing and rental crisis. This situation is characterised by an increasing demand for housing coupled with spiralling rental costs, factors that are pushing more individuals and families towards precarious living conditions. Our QSTARS program is formulating strategies to address the anticipated rise in client needs. Concentrating on providing timely assistance and guidance to navigate the challenging housing market coupled with a commitment to advocating for more sustainable solutions keeping people in safe, fair and secure tenancies is our priority.

This crisis, alongside ongoing cost of living pressures is also placing pressure across the communities we serve, particularly vulnerable groups. Unfortunately, as a result we expect the need for domestic and family violence assistance across our programs to increase.

In tandem to this, we are continuing our efforts to mitigate the issue of domestic violence. With the support of the Queensland Government, we are initiating a project, the Rural Motherhood Initiative, in the Western Downs. The program aims to foster stronger bonds between mothers and children in the early stages of motherhood. This initiative is a step towards building safer and more nurturing environments, which are vital in breaking the cycle of violence.

In the coming year, our Social Justice Advocates will prioritise assisting individuals in accessing and navigating the evolving NDIS system. As the NDIS landscape shifts, we're poised to address the emerging needs of the disability community. Our advocates are geared to guide individuals through the system's intricacies.

The rise in reported elder abuse cases, especially concerns linked to failed granny flat arrangements and inheritance impatience, is prompting action from our team. Our newly expanded Seniors Legal and Support Service will not only directly address these issues but will also emphasise early education in the community. This approach aims to raise awareness and promote preventive measures, helping to ensure our elderly population is better protected and informed.

As the financial year commences, we implement a significant organisational restructuring to better align our programs and resources. This restructuring includes initiatives such as creating an additional Principal Solicitor position and expanding our Social Justice and Advocacy services in Toowoomba and Ipswich, focusing on more effective utilisation of expertise and fostering interdisciplinary collaboration.

Like many organisations post-Covid staff recruitment and retention has been a major issue in the past year. With recruitment addressed the coming financial year will see a variety of initiatives implemented to help address focus on retention and to help build a solid culture for the future. One of the key strategies being deployed revolves around improving internal communication, celebrating the work we do and the expertise of TASC's team.

In terms of communication and collaboration, we are working to enhance this through implementing a structured internal communication program which is expected to facilitate more frequent and productive interactions between the Executive Leadership, the Board, and the entire TASC team. This strategy is part of our goal to cultivate a work environment where open dialogue is encouraged, fostering a culture of mutual respect and understanding across various organisational levels. In our pursuit of continuous improvement, we will also refine our feedback mechanisms to garner insights that can guide our future strategies and actions.

Celebrating TASC's values and mission, and the genuine care our team has for the people we serve will also be a core strategy along, with TASC's recruitment strategy continuing to be grounded in a values-based approach. Promoting alignment between the organisation's objectives and the personal values of our staff is an aspect that is instrumental in enhancing staff wellbeing and retention.

To help implement these initiatives, we have engaged HR specialists. Additionally, we are placing a renewed emphasis on ensuring psychological safety within our teams, aligning with the new WHS regulations and recognising the inherent emotional and cognitive demands of working in the community legal and advocacy sectors.

We are also progressing in the development of a reporting framework to showcase our Environmental and Social Governance initiatives. While our current activities already contribute positively to the community and environment, we will focus on documenting and reporting on the impact these measures have and find ways to improve.

In response to the changing landscape in not-for-profit operational expectations improving our organisational governance is in the forefront for the upcoming year. Along with upskilling ourselves and our Board in July 2023, we plan to establish a risk and finance sub-committee, bringing together the expertise of Board members and TASC's executive leadership to enhance governance and risk management procedures within our organisation.

As your CEO, I am committed to guiding TASC through these developments, with a focus firmly grounded in our mission and a dedication to serving our community effectively. Through collaborative efforts and a continual emphasis on refining our operational processes and service delivery, we aim to make a positive and lasting impact in the lives of those we serve.

About TASC

Established in 1982, TASC began as a community legal service in Toowoomba, assisting its vulnerable residents. Over the years, it has expanded its footprint to provide legal, advocacy, and social justice services across southern and south-west Queensland, including Ipswich and parts of Wide Bay.

This extension of services reflects the needs of rural communities. The organisation evolved into 'The Advocacy and Support Centre (TASC) Inc.' and established offices in Goondiwindi, Ipswich, Roma, Bundaberg, and Hervey Bay. From its origins as an incorporated association, TASC transformed into TASC National Limited, a company limited by guarantee and a significant community legal entity in Queensland.

Aligning with its core services, TASC adopted the title: 'Legal and Social Justice Service'. Federal and state funding enables TASC to deliver essential services. Our team, comprising lawyers, advocates, and social workers, collaborates with various stakeholders, ensuring comprehensive service delivery.

Our volunteer force contributes significantly, providing legal and administrative support to our clients. TASC is accredited by the National Association of Community Legal Centres for its legal services and the National Standards for Disability Services (NSDS) for Advocacy Services. We remain committed to our mission and thank the community for its support.

Our logo

We have continued our branding implementation this financial year that incorporates new and old colours from previous TASC branding. It is a combination of what has built us, but also what remains the same.

The sweeping semi-circle symbolises togetherness, with the community and staff working together to form partnerships to continue to enable justice and change lives.

The bottom of the circle is shaped like a hand to represent the guiding hand of TASC professionals to support the clients we serve.

In 2022–23 TASC saw a reduction in the number of people assisted across the year. This reduction was due to impaired capacity resulting from staff recruitment and retention challenges, particularly in our legal service. Despite these challenges, the total number of people helped was only marginally below the five year average.

Among those assisted, TASC saw an increased number of people experiencing homelessness and insecure accommodation. The five year trend shows an accelerating increase with the exception of 2020–21 when COVID interventions by State and Federal Governments may have influenced the drop. Given the continuing housing crisis being experienced nationally, TASC does not expect this trend to change.

Another area where cost of living and housing crises appear to be having a detrimental impact is in the proportion of TASC clients experiencing Family and Domestic Violence. The 5 year data shows clear peaks where wider societal stressors are at play. In 2020–21, during the peak of COVID lockdowns TASC noted a 2% increase over the historical average of 36.75%. In 2022–23 as cost of living and rental crises have played out further we have seen an even sharper rise to 41.87%.

Our workforce and occupational well-being

Geographic distribution

TASC boasts a workforce geographically distributed across several regions of Queensland.

Our two key staff centres are in Toowoomba and Ipswich. Additional offices, staffed by individual staff members, are strategically located in Bundaberg, Gympie, Hervey Bay, Roma and Goondiwindi.

As of 30 June 2023, TASC employs 59 individuals in various roles across full-time, part-time and casual positions with a Full-Time Equivalent (FTE) of 41.

Leveraging technology for collaboration

Given our expansive geographical footprint, the role of technology and electronic platforms cannot be overstated.

These resources have proven crucial for ensuring seamless intra-team communication and cross-discipline collaboration among TASC's personnel, effectively aligning individuals across the organisation. Our openness to utilising technology facilitates both remote work arrangements and comprehensive organisational communication.

Equal opportunity and diversity

Embodying our commitment to inclusivity, TASC stands as an equal opportunity employer. We actively foster a diverse workforce, encouraging applications from individuals from all backgrounds to join our community legal centre.

This stance is solidified by both established policies and our organisation's underlying values and approaches to respectful and culturally sensitive community interactions.

Training and development

To enhance staff retention, satisfaction and professional growth, TASC provides varied opportunities for employee training and development.

These range from formal learning avenues such as seminars, workshops and certification programs to informal learning opportunities, including internal mentorships and self-paced learning. Our initiative to formalise mentorship opportunities in the upcoming fiscal year shows our dedication to employee growth, ensuring the transference of knowledge, skills and strategies from senior roles to newer team members.

Occupational health, safety, and well-being

The past year saw a reinforced focus on employee-driven Occupational Health and Safety (OH&S) initiatives.

Despite high staff turnover, we have sought to maintain a dynamic and engaged OH&S committee, integral to reinforcing TASC's formal OH&S policies. The management team is prioritising this aspect, ensuring the well-being and safety of our staff members.

In response to the substantial car travel involved in outreach programs, TASC ensures the provision and maintenance of a modern vehicle fleet, equipped with advanced electronic safety features. We also offer ergonomic support to our office-based staff, emphasising the significance of physical well-being.

Focus on psychosocial safety

In light of the April 2023 amendments in Australian Work Health and Safety Regulations, we welcome the heightened focus on psychosocial safety.

Recognising the cognitive and emotional load associated with our sector, TASC has pre-emptively established strategies and policies to mitigate related risks.

All TASC employees have access to an independent Employee Assistance Program, offering various supports, including counselling services, further underlining our commitment to holistic employee well-being.

Alan Martin (the Rainbow Warrior) visited TASC on Monday morning for a smoking ceremony and mindfulness session as part of Reconciliation week.

We thank Alan, proud Gungarri man, for sharing his time and traditional cultural practices today at TASC. The ceremony has created a foundation to keep reflecting, learning, working with First Nations peoples respectfully as a Team, and to "Be a Voice for Generations", a voice for reconciliation – where we live, work, and play.

Our volunteer program

Volunteer program

In 2023, TASC's volunteer program, specifically within the Legal Intake Team, has undergone significant development. Utilising the capabilities of the Volaby volunteering platform and orchestrated by solicitor, Kirsten Williams, TASC has successfully incorporated seven motivated Legal Intake volunteers in its Ipswich and Toowoomba locations.

Successful transitions to paid roles

A positive outcome of this revitalisation is evident in the transition of three volunteers to paid positions within the organisation. This shift not only marks personal growth for the individuals but also forms a beneficial cycle of skill and knowledge exchange, as they now assist in training new volunteer inductees.

Academic partnership and achievements

This year also saw the roll-out of a collaborative relationship between TASC's volunteer program and the Law Hub and Legal Clinic at the University of Southern Queensland. This partnership paved the way for the new Law3491 Work Experience elective course, which blends theoretical instruction with practical experience. Notably, this collaboration aided student Lisa Sentinella in achieving a high distinction, while also enabling TASC to leverage her legal expertise.

Upcoming volunteers

As we approach September 2023, TASC is set to onboard four new Legal Intake volunteers. This engagement is expected to provide them with substantial real-world legal experience and opportunities for professional advancement. The experience is anticipated to be a valuable step in their budding legal careers and fulfils TASC's direction to give back to the community legal sector through providing opportunities for practical legal experience.

Volunteer feedback and organisational culture

Volunteer feedback underscores the positive impact of TASC's program, aiding in skill development and enhancement while complementing academic learning. At TASC, there is a consistent endeavour to cultivate an environment that promotes a sense of belonging and appreciation, acknowledging the substantial contributions volunteers make to the organisation.

People like me can be so caught in up in their own troubles that we don't stop and appreciate others' efforts. But TASC's willingness to help can change a person's life.

TASC attends Toowoomba Homelessness Expo

Homelessness is an entrenched and growing issue for Queensland as housing affordability continues to get worse and 1 in 200 people homeless in Australia on any given night. Homelessness is not confined to people sleeping rough on the street, it also includes people sleeping in cars, sleeping in tents in state parks or friends back yards and those in a cycle of temporary housing situations such as rooming houses and couch surfing.

Legal services achievements and challenges

During the 22-23 financial year, our General Legal Service encountered significant challenges, primarily characterised by staffing shortages and recruitment difficulties.

These issues were magnified in rural and regional areas due to a prevalent labour shortage within the sector. Despite these hurdles, we initiated several strategies to stabilise the situation and maintain the quality of service delivery.

Staffing and Recruitment

High staff turnover during the period, combined with recruitment difficulties saw substantial challenges in terms of capacity for our legal services.

TASC actively addressed these concerns, implementing innovative solutions to minimise disruptions. While this has been a pervasive issue across the sector, TASC is committed to fostering a resilient and adaptable workforce.

In Goondiwindi, recruitment remained an ongoing challenge. However, towards the end of the financial year we were able to fill the Goondiwindi solicitor position. Before this development, we ensured continuity of service by rotating solicitors on a fortnightly basis.

Additionally in Roma, we adopted a flexible approach, successfully filling a position with a solicitor who alternates between working on-site and remotely on a weekly basis.

Throughout these challenges, we maintained transparency with the State Program Manager for Legal Aid Queensland, who was updated on the hurdles and the strategies employed to navigate them.

Performance Metrics

With the stated staffing challenges we were unable to meet our yearly deliverables.

Nevertheless, through regular liaisons with the State Program Manager, a modification to reduce the deliverables was approved, maintaining the effectiveness and quality of our services.

Queensland (CLCQ), assesses various metrics including service accessibility, staff expertise and client engagement, client confidence in the service, the alignment of services with cultural and personal needs and overall satisfaction.

These outcomes demonstrate our resilience and commitment to excellence despite the challenges encountered during the year.

Legal Social Work position

Early in the financial year, the legal social work position was discontinued due to funding realignment.

Initially established through the repurposing of unspent funds to provide short-term social work support and counselling, it had begun to integrate seamlessly within our legal service structure, with a notable number of referrals. We are considering seeking funding to reinstate this position in the upcoming funding round.

Mind My Legals

TASC secured funding for a hybrid legal/social work program called "Mind My Legals," designed to assist individuals within the Darling Downs Health Network experiencing mental illness.

The Toowoomba based program is forging a strong partnership with the Darling Downs Mental Health Unit to address concurrent mental health, legal and social work issues.

We anticipate an increase in referrals and collaborations in the coming months, after establishing a firm foundation for the program through collaboration, networking and raising awareness of the service.

Funding for this was awarded by the Queensland Government from funds from the Commonwealth Government through the National Mental Health and Suicide Prevention Plan to support the early resolution of legal problems for those experiencing mental illness.

Rural Women's Outreach Legal Service

TASC has amplified our commitment to the Rural Women's Outreach Legal Service, with a focus on communities in Miles, Chinchilla and Tara.

This initiative is designed to support women in rural areas through regular visits to neighbourhood centres and outreach services.

Additional Legal Services

Our efforts continue in the Mental Health Review Tribunal and Domestic Violence Duty Lawyer operations in Toowoomba and Ipswich.

However, due to resource constraints, we have paused the Criminal Duty Lawyer and Child Protection Duty Lawyer services.

Organisational Restructuring

Reflecting TASC's growth and development, a restructuring of services in the fiscal year 22/23 was planned, with full implementation expected early in the 23/24 fiscal year.

This restructure will divide the General Legal and Integrated Services, with each section managed by a Principal Solicitor. The recruitment process for a second Principal Solicitor is ongoing.

Community Legal Sector activities

TASC is an active member of Queensland's Regional Legal Assistance Forums (RLAFs), particularly as it applies to South West Queensland.

Regional legal assistance forums (RLAFs) help to reduce service duplication, encourage working relationships between services and the forums, and provide feedback to the Queensland Legal Assistance Forum (QLAF) on the needs of disadvantaged people.

Meetings are held quarterly, and membership is comprised of stakeholders relevant to each RLAF but usually involves participation from Legal Aid Queensland, the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Legal Service (ATSILS) Queensland, local Community Legal Centres and the Family Violence Prevention Legal Services.

For more information please visit Regional Legal Assistance forums | Department of Justice and Attorney-General.

Community Legal Education

At TASC our legal team also conducts community education and law reform activities to help build a fairer society and empower groups with knowledge and resources.

From education sessions at high schools to working with other community organisations to build their knowledge on legal topics which affect their service delivery, our legal team uses their unique experience and expertise to give useful, accurate and topical information and resources.

Community Legal Education activities In the 2022-23 financial year were curtailed somewhat, again due to well-documented staffing issues at the organization. However, through their outreach work with the Rural Women's Legal Outreach Legal Service we were able to conduct education activities around family and domestic violence including explanations and information around new coercive control legislation being implemented in Queensland.

These activities predominantly took place in townships on the Western Darling Downs and also covered explanation and education around different types of domestic violence along with the associated court process and application process.

Once again the Rural Women's Outreach Service demonstrated its value, not only to women in rural communities, but also for TASC as an opportunity to connect people in rural and regional areas in order to provide timely and pertinent information. With this in mind, TASC has earmarked early 2024 as a time to expand the face-to-face service footprint to include other towns on the Darling Downs and Maranoa. These include Dalby, St George, Warwick and Stanthorpe.

Legal Service case study:

Securing Protection from Domestic Violence

Background:

Carol (name changed), faced severe domestic violence from her long-term partner, the father of her two youngest daughters. The relationship was marked by physical assault, stalking, and coercive control.

Carol's turning point came when her four-year-old daughter revealed sexual abuse by her father, prompting Carol to seek immediate protection for her family. Despite reporting to the police, Carol was advised to lodge a private application for a domestic violence order, as her case was not deemed urgent.

Challenge:

Carol's situation is indicative of critical social issues, including the threat of domestic violence and the challenge of navigating legal systems for safety and justice. Her case raised concerns about access to immediate support, family security, and the fairness of the legal response.

Intervention:

TASC's involvement began when Carol accessed its domestic violence duty lawyer service at the Ipswich Magistrates Court House. Recognising the complexity of her case, TASC's duty lawyer referred her to the generalist team.

TASC's multidisciplinary approach, incorporating legal and social work services, was pivotal in addressing Carol's needs. TASC solicitors conducted multiple advice sessions to delve into the depth of her legal issues, a process she initially couldn't fully explore with police. The internal legal/ social work service at TASC played a significant role in supporting Carol, facilitating open discussion about her legal matters.

With the established trust and rapport, TASC assisted Carol in applying for ongoing representation through Legal Aid and in drafting a comprehensive Domestic Violence Affidavit. This affidavit strategically demonstrated the strength of her case against the long-term partner, indicating the unlikelihood of his success at trial.

Outcomes:

Carol successfully obtained a final protection order for five years, which prohibited her long-term partner from contacting or locating her and mandated good behaviour towards the children.

She expressed deep gratitude for TASC's assistance in preparing her affidavit and media exhibits. Empowered by the process and well-prepared evidence, Carol now lives in stable accommodation, feeling safer with the protective order in place. She is reassured that she can rely on TASC for future legal support if needed.

This case underscores the essential role of community legal centres in providing comprehensive legal and social work services, particularly for individuals confronting domestic violence and navigating complex legal systems.

Legal Service case study:

Facilitating access to legal assistance for in remote areas

Background:

Jean (name changed), a single parent residing in an isolated town in South West Queensland, faced significant challenges due to the lack of local services. With no access to a solicitor, support services, food, or public transport, her challenges were compounded by the remoteness of her location.

The nearest town with essential amenities was over an hour away by car. Further complicating her situation, Jean had lost her driver's license which was critical for accessing food and medical services for herself and her children, amidst a backdrop of family violence.

Challenge:

Jean's predicament highlighted issues faced by many in remote and rural areas of Queensland, such as limited access to legal and social support, compounded by logistical difficulties.

The loss of her driver's license not only impacted her mobility but also her ability to provide for her family's basic needs, emphasizing the importance of access, security, and fairness in such circumstances.

Intervention:

A referral was made to TASC through a stakeholder who recognised the unique challenges Jean faced.

The Rural Women's Outreach Legal Service (RWOLS) solicitor travelled to Jean's town to prepare an application for a special hardship order, a task that required in-person attendance to witness her affidavit.

Without this direct intervention, Jean would not have been able to proceed as there was no one locally available to fulfill this role. The solicitor also liaised with stakeholders for additional support letters. This assistance was crucial, as Jean, without the ability to drive, was relying on limited food supplies at home to feed her family.

By filing the application swiftly, the suspension on Jean's license was temporarily stayed until the night before the court date, allowing her temporary driving access to obtain food and medical services.

Outcomes:

The solicitor successfully sought leave to appear in the relevant court on Jean's behalf. Additionally, permission was granted for Jean to attend the hearing via phone.

The application was successful, resulting in Jean being granted a special hardship license due to her severe and unusual circumstances.

Conclusion:

Now the problem is solved, Jean can continue to drive under the special hardship license, ensuring access to essential services for her family.

This case illustrates the critical role of access to legal assistance in remote and rural areas, where geographical isolation can severely limit access to basic services and legal support. The successful outcome highlights the importance of tailored legal assistance in addressing the unique challenges faced by individuals in remote communities.

Law reform and systemic advocacy

In the last financial year, TASC maintained its commitment to championing the rights and welfare of vulnerable populations through active participation in legislative inquiries and contributions to law reform.

Below is an outline of TASC's contributions, advocating for human rights, particularly for the vulnerable in our community, helping make their voices heard in legislative discussions:

October 2022 – Submission to the Inquiry into the Residential Tenancies and Rooming Accommodation (Rent Freeze) Amendment Bill 2022

In this submission, TASC underscored the fundamental human right to adequate housing as recognised by the United Nations Declaration of Human Rights.

The submission highlighted the concern that substantial rent increases, significantly outpacing the Consumer Price Index (CPI), are propelling vulnerable individuals into homelessness.

Attention was drawn to real estate and property management services advocating for these increases solely for financial gain, without considering the devastating human impact. It further highlighted the struggle of the economically disadvantaged who are forced to compromise basic life necessities to afford the escalating rents.

TASC proposed the introduction of an annual levy on real estate agents and property managers, the revenue from which would directly assist those burdened by rent increases, particularly individuals dependent on welfare.

November 2022 – Submission to the Inquiry into the Child Protection (Offender Reporting and Offender Prohibition Order) and Other Legislation Amendment Bill 2022

TASC expressed its support for proposed legislative amendments aimed at enhancing the powers of agencies in overseeing offenders.

The submission backed registration of the use of anonymising software by offenders and enhanced inter-jurisdictional exchange of criminal history information, particularly concerning child sex offenders.

Such amendments are crucial for fortifying child protection measures and ensuring more effective monitoring and management of offenders.

January 2023 – Submission to the Monitoring of Places of Detention (Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture) Bill 2022

In this instance, TASC voiced its support for amendments permitting the OPCAT team to oversee and report on places of detention within Queensland.

The findings of such monitoring will contribute to formulating recommendations, ensuring Australia's adherence to its obligations under the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture.

TASC reinforced the importance of scrutiny over various detention centres, including prisons, psychiatric facilities, acute mental health units, aged care facilities and youth detention centres, as a measure to prevent torture and inhumane treatment.

February 2023 – Submission to the Inquiry into the Strengthening Community Safety Bill 2023

TASC's submission for this inquiry highlighted the hasty call for submissions within a 48-hour window as a reaction to increasing youth crime and related civilian deaths.

TASC emphasised the impossibility for stakeholders to provide thoughtful and comprehensive evidence within such a constrained timeframe.

Moreover, TASC criticised the proposed legislative amendments related to youth crime as contradicting the recommendations from a comprehensive inquiry conducted by the same Government in 2015. The submission focused on the Government's inability to effectively address and manage youth crime, cautioning against reactionary and ill-considered legislative changes that may not address the root issues and could inadvertently exacerbate the problem.

Through these activities, TASC continues to demonstrate a relentless pursuit of justice and equity, ensuring that legislative amendments adhere to human rights standards and genuinely address the concerns and needs of the vulnerable sectors of society.

Legal Services

Legal Service case study:

Advocating for fair representation and children's best interest

Background:

In the wider social sphere, where issues like homelessness, mortgage stress and violence against women prevail, the case we encounter here revolves around a father who has been trapped in an exhausting legal battle for the safety and well-being of his children, presenting a clear violation of fairness and security.

For a period of five years, this father has been navigating through a turbulent sea of accusations, legal intricacies and representation imbalances which has threatened his access to justice and the opportunity to safeguard his children's best interests.

Challenge:

This case underscores a father's journey in retaining the custody of his two children, amidst a barrage of unsubstantiated allegations by the children's mother. Despite bearing the brunt of accusations ranging from drug abuse to domestic violence and alcoholism – allegations that remained uncorroborated – the father persevered, fiercely advocating for what he believed to be the best interest of his children.

Throughout the gruelling legal process, the mother was continually supported by legally aided solicitors and barristers, an advantage the father notably lacked for most of the journey. This discrepancy created an environment ripe for attempts by other legal parties to manipulate and pressurise the father into conforming to agreements he didn't consent to. The situation garnered the attention of our Community Legal Centre (CLC), which perceived an egregious absence of fairness and the potential for the father to be unduly pressured by other legal entities, including the court system.

Intervention:

In light of the financial constraints preventing the father from hiring a private solicitor, TASC emerged as a crucial source of assistance. Though not formally representing him in court as it is beyond the scope of our funding, TASC played a pivotal role in equipping the father with the necessary tools to navigate the trial. This included helping craft affidavits at the court's request, developing case outlines and offering guidance on courtroom protocols, including witness cross-examination techniques.

During the final hearing at the Federal Circuit and Family Court of Australia (FCFCoA), the father represented himself with considerable poise and competence, even when faced with the concerted efforts of three barristers representing the opposing party. TASC continued to support him diligently, aiding in the preparation of final submissions before the judge reserved their decision.

Outcomes:

Through the tireless efforts and extensive support provided by TASC, a breakthrough was finally achieved.

The father regained custody of his younger child after 14 months of separation, as the court acknowledged the lack of evidence supporting the risk allegations made by the other party.

Additionally, the father was granted the sole authority to make critical long-term decisions for the younger child.

Regarding his 16-year-old daughter, who initially stayed with her mother, a consensus was reached acknowledging the child's autonomy at this age. However, it was heartening to note that she has now chosen to reside with her father.

Social Justice Services (SJS) achievements and challenges

TASC Social Justice Services (SJS) team combines professionals from all walks of life with unique personal experiences and exceptional credentials.

We have social workers, advocates, team leaders and legal professionals all working together to achieve remarkable outcomes for vulnerable members of the communities in which we operate.

The 2022/23 financial year was a time of rapid change for the SJS team, with staffing changes across all levels of the service including executive management. This was part of a nationwide trend witnessed by many organisations in the sector which included increased employment mobility, recruitment and retention challenges, particularly in regional areas which are still experiencing at times acute labour shortages.

In August TASC farewelled long term SJS manager Terri-Ann Dwyer and welcomed Gail Reardon to the role in December following a thorough recruitment process for this key position. We also farewelled many existing advocates and brought new people into the organisation, particularly in the Disability Advocacy roles.

While challenging, TASC was able to leverage this into an opportunity to align with the wider organisational goal of amending the structure of both the SJS and Legal services.

This was a significant transformation, striving to enhance team capacity and align with our foundational values. The restructure was planned in the 22/23 financial year and implemented in July of the following financial year.

These challenges have allowed TASC to embark on building a team that marries expertise with compassion, creating a dedicated team of advocates in sync with the organisation's ethos.

Performance: Across all SJS programs, excluding QSTARS and the Seniors Legal and Support Service which operates under a hybrid social work and legal model for reporting, TASC's SJS service helped 599 individuals, reflecting 5932 hours of advocacy assistance and support.

Milestones and progress

Team expansion and strategic realignment

Despite recruitment challenges across the sector, TASC's SJS team has filled all advocate roles across their programs. This has allowed us to expand our footprint and fortify our team across several geographic regions:

Toowoomba: Our central hub and where the head office is situated, Toowoomba hosts an experienced senior advocate who is available to assist and mentor a team of advocates. Toowoomba is also the base for specialists focusing on mental health advocacy and redress programs.

Ipswich: A vibrant centre with a growing team of advocates and plans well underway to introduce an Ipswich base senior advocate to help steer our efforts in the area.

Gympie, Hervey Bay, and Bundaberg: TASC's Wide Bay hub, these locations have warmly welcomed dedicated disability advocates who are tirelessly working to build strong community connections and provide essential support.

Additionally, our client engagement team has seen changes in Ipswich and Toowoomba, welcoming new team members to continue the energy and empathy of our initial client interaction and intake processes.

Program restructuring

A notable part of our journey this year was the strategic restructuring that we initiated to optimise resource management and align our programs more cohesively with respective disciplines.

In a significant move, two of our programs – the Seniors Legal and Support Service and the QSTARS tenancy advocacy service – transitioned from the Social Justice Services (SJS) to TASC's Legal Services.

This transition, planned and designed in 22/23 and executed in July '23, was designed to resonate more accurately with the legal disciplines and streamline management resources.

Community engagement: collaborative outreach

Community engagement and building our profile in the communities we serve has been a focal point of our activities this year:

Speaking engagements: Our team has been honoured to serve as guest speakers at various forums, sharing insights and fostering synergies with organisations like Carers Queensland and Cosmos Community Care.

Conferences: We actively participated in significant conferences in Queensland and Sydney, engaging with peers and gathering fresh perspectives to enrich our mission.

Local Initiatives: Our focus remained steadfast on nurturing community ties through active participation in local events, as well as fostering respectful collaborations with communities and healthcare establishments in Toowoomba.

Challenges and Strategic Responses

This year's voyage also brought forward certain challenges, including managing an uptick in NDIS-related referrals and ensuring cohesive support across our geographically dispersed teams.

To address this increased technically challenging workload, we initiated regular and meaningful team meetings, encouraging a culture of open dialogue and mutual support.

Given the current debate and policy landscape around the National Disability Insurance Scheme, we expect this increased need for support to continue and are continuing our strategy of timely, supportive and open internal communication across the team to manage this within our current funding and resources.

Looking Ahead

As we move forward, our dedication remains strong in fostering a team that embodies both professionalism and a nurturing spirit. Our first-ever team retreat in March served as a valuable platform for team members to forge deeper connections and align towards common goals.

For the purpose of this report, QSTARS Tenancy Support Service, Seniors Legal and Support Service and Redress will be presented separately due to the notable opportunities and unique challenges each program has faced across the year.

TASC's Social Justice team had the chance to discuss the impact their programs are having in Southern Queensland communities earlier this week when senior members of QLD's Department of Seniors, Disability Services and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Partnerships visited our Toowoomba office.

Deputy Director General, Max Wise and Director of Specialist Programs Lauren McFarlane were given an overview of our services, with an emphasis on TASC's disability advocacy and Seniors Legal and Support Services (SLASS).

TASC's SLASS service exists to help older people who are at risk of or experiencing elder abuse – which it's estimated affects almost 1 in 6 Australians aged over 65.

Each year our disability advocacy services help hundreds of people living with a disability to enforce and maintain their human rights.

Disability Advocacy case study:

Comprehensive advocacy for Sean's NDIS support needs

Background:

Sean (name changed) is a 7-year-old boy facing a myriad of health challenges. His diagnoses include ASD level 3, oral aversion, asthma, central hypertonia, sleep disorder, non-verbal tendencies, permanent hearing loss in his right ear and intellectual impairment. Additionally, Sean relies on a nasogastric tube for his nutritional needs. This complex healthcare scenario is further complicated by his father's long, sporadic absences due to work, leaving his mother to shoulder the significant caregiving responsibilities.

Challenge:

Sean's support network faced a substantial setback when the NDIS unexpectedly reduced core funding, vital for his active overnight support, given his two-hourly feeding schedule.

This cut deeply impacted his mother, who was already grappling with the challenges of caring for him and his three siblings, two of whom are also on the spectrum.

Despite a previous internal review, the NDIS proceeded to further slash the support coordination funding. Their rationale was that the family's existing "dream team" of allied health professionals made additional funding superfluous.

Moreover, the family encountered bureaucratic obstacles, with the NDIS requiring separate forms for each of Sean's multiple diagnoses.

Intervention:

An advocate took the helm to provide guidance and clarity in this intricate scenario, collaborating closely with the support coordinator, who was based interstate. The advocate facilitated the correct completion of the "Change of Circumstance" form and shared methodologies to incorporate all Sean's conditions into the plan. To gain a better understanding and clear any ambiguities, the advocate initiated direct dialogues with the NDIS, ensuring all steps were transparent and well-communicated.

Outcomes:

Armed with the advocate's insights and resources, the support coordinator began intensive collaboration with key medical professionals, including Sean's occupational therapist, speech pathologist and paediatrician. They reframed their reports, highlighting the extensive impact of Sean's impairments. By shedding light on issues including social isolation, daily living challenges, personal care needs and caregiver burnout, the team aimed to present a robust case for the reinstatement and possible increase of his funding. A significant development was the allocation of a new support worker for Sean. Moreover, a resolution was reached with the NDIS where they agreed not to charge the plan for the previous support work hours, providing significant relief for the family.

Conclusion:

Sean's case serves as a poignant reminder of the intricacies and hurdles families can face within administrative systems, even when the primary objective is ensuring holistic care for a child with multifaceted medical needs.

Advocacy, in such contexts, emerges as an invaluable tool, bridging knowledge gaps and strategising to secure families the comprehensive support they both need and deserve.

Disability Advocacy case study:

Advocacy support for NDIS application during a time of crisis

Background:

James (name changed) was facing an impending crisis. His mother, who was terminally ill with cancer, sought assistance to secure an NDIS plan for James prior to her passing.

James had previously applied for an NDIS plan through NDIA, but his application was denied.

Challenge:

With his mother's health deteriorating, James urgently needed to:

- Reapply and successfully obtain an NDIS plan.
- Ensure all support systems were in place prior to his mother's passing.

Intervention:

Application review and submission: The advocate embarked on a thorough review of all existing documentation related to James' initial NDIS application, including forms, reports and feedback from NDIS. Recognising the importance of comprehensive documentation, James' mother commissioned an occupational therapist report. The advocate reviewed this report, ensuring it aligned with the needs of a successful NDIS application. Subsequently, the advocate aided in completing a new application, and then formally submitted it on James's behalf to NDIA.

Urgent communication: Considering the time-sensitive nature of James' situation, the advocate communicated with NDIA to emphasise the urgency of the plan's review. This was crucial given James' primary decision-making assistant, his mother, was rapidly approaching the end of her life.

Plan formulation and implementation: To ensure the efficacy of the plan, the advocate guided James and his mother in formulating precise Plan Goals. At the family's request, the advocate also actively participated in the planning meeting with the Local Area Coordinator, providing essential insights and recommendations.

Following the plan's approval, the advocate played a pivotal role in identifying and connecting with a suitable support coordinator. This liaison was instrumental in actualising James's NDIS plan.

Outcomes:

Thanks to the advocate's diligent and timely interventions:

- James successfully secured his NDIS plan.
- A robust support system was put in place, ensuring James' future care.

Conclusion:

This case sheds light on the challenges faced by families during traumatic times and the importance of advocacy support.

The advocate's involvement provided James and his mother with peace of mind, alleviating the latter's anxiety concerning her son's well-being after her death. Through methodical steps and a deep sense of compassion, James' future was secured, demonstrating the power of timely and effective advocacy.

Disability Advocacy case study:

Supportive interventions for a client with chronic panic disorder

Background:

Kevin (name changed), a 43-year-old male on a Disability Support Pension due to Chronic Panic Disorder, found himself navigating immense challenges.

The sudden and unexpected passing of his partner and carer of over two decades had left him without the essential support he relied heavily on. His partner had been instrumental in facilitating access to key services and sharing living expenses, including rent.

Challenge:

In the wake of his partner's passing, Kevin's immediate priorities included:

- Obtaining medication to aid in managing his Panic Disorder.
- Seeking housing assistance given the looming threat of homelessness.

Kevin's severe condition intensified these challenges. A history of blackouts from panic attacks had led to various physical injuries and the chance of a severe head injury or even death was a very real threat.

Intervention:

Medication access: Initially, Kevin encountered challenges in obtaining his medication. His GP, who was well-acquainted with his condition, had moved to another practice. Unfortunately, the new GP misinterpreted Kevin's abrupt manner, which stemmed from anxiety and limited social interactions, as rudeness, leading to Kevin being banned from the clinic.

Thankfully, with the assistance of TASC Advocacy, an understanding local GP was found. This GP correctly interpreted Kevin's behaviours and diagnosis. Though Kevin became agitated momentarily and exited the consultation; with the advocate's support he was encouraged to return and was able to complete the appointment. Consequently, Kevin received the prescription for the required medication.

Housing assistance: Previously, Kevin had made attempts to secure housing assistance but lacked knowledge of the proper application process. With the guidance and support of his advocate, Kevin approached the Department of Housing (DOH). During this visit, when he experienced a panic attack, he was able to be calmed and reassured. The DOH staff's empathetic and accommodating approach saw Kevin being granted a six-month rental aid at $100 per week—double the typical duration. This act held profound significance for Kevin, evidenced when he felt secure enough to momentarily remove his hat during the meeting.

Outcomes:

- Kevin successfully procured his medication, mitigating some of the risks associated with his Panic Disorder and enabling him to attend to matters outside his home.
- He was granted six months of rental assistance, allowing him more time to explore long-term housing alternatives to avoid homelessness.

Conclusion:

This case underscores the profound challenges faced by individuals grappling with Chronic Panic Disorder in executing day-to-day activities. Kevin's resilience, especially given the grief of losing his partner, is truly commendable. This case study demonstrates the efficacy of an advocacy approach which works with clients to empower them to have choice and input into their affairs.

Tenancy Advocacy: QSTARS Program

In the 22/23 financial year, TASC's QSTARS program funded and supervised by Tenants Queensland as part of the statewide QSTARS service witnessed increasing demand and demand coming from people who have not needed tenancy and housing services previously.

With the ongoing housing crisis being experienced across Australia, TASC's tenancy advocates have noted several evolving trends in the rental markets of South West and certain areas of South East Queensland.

The housing crisis and unconventional living arrangements

Over the period, people have had to adapt to the enduring housing crisis in an effort to secure shelter.

A growing number of individuals have begun resorting to unconventional living solutions, like occupying vehicles or entering shared spaces. This change correlates with the prevailing difficulties in the housing market, where high demand for properties significantly outstrips supply, particularly in the sectors offering affordable accommodation.

Additionally, a move towards rooming accommodation agreements has been discerned, with lessors favouring a room-by-room rental strategy, which typically costs between $180 and $250 per week.

Unfortunately, TASC has also seen a growing desensitisation towards the housing crisis, with it becoming increasingly common for people to be living in their car, on the streets or with someone else.

Challenges for single-income individuals

Unfortunately, the present market dynamics have rendered it increasingly difficult for single individuals, irrespective of their employment status or reliance on support payments, to secure rental properties.

This appears largely due to agents enforcing the 30% income-to-rent guideline, a benchmark becoming increasingly unfeasible amidst soaring rental prices.

Property maintenance issues

Adding complexity to the scenario is the noticeable increase in properties that are not adequately maintained by lessors.

Several factors are contributing to this trend, including higher expenses incurred by lessors and a prevalent tendency among potential tenants to accept properties "as is," thereby diminishing the necessity for immediate repairs.

This hesitancy to request repairs, or to accept poorly maintained properties is likely due to fears of retaliatory actions such as termination of tenancy or abrupt rent surges

Legislative developments and market responses

Legislative advancements, specifically the enactment of a rule limiting rent hikes to a 12-month cycle, have paradoxically encouraged a proliferation in 6-month tenancy contracts. This approach from lessors seems to be a tactic to bypass the new regulations, often resulting in tenants being asked to vacate to permit rent adjustments. The Government is currently scrutinising this situation, given the primary objective of the legislation was to ensure greater security and stability for tenants.

Agency negotiations and power imbalance

All these factors have combined to contribute to an increased power imbalance between tenants and agents, with the ability to negotiate noticeably reduced. On numerous occasions, lessors were found to be uninformed of the agents' engagements with the tenants, breeding a clear power disparity between agents and tenants which affects a wide demographic cross-section across all rental property segments.

Seniors Legal & Support Service (SLASS)

The 2022/23 financial year saw a significant evolution for TASC's Seniors Legal and Support Service (SLASS), embodying a period of transformation and rejuvenation. Throughout this period, we've sharpened our focus on enhancing the support structure for the older people in our service catchment, making concerted efforts to expand reach and amplify awareness regarding elder abuse.

Program development and expansion

This year, SLASS underwent significant transformations, witnessing the departure of several long-standing team members and welcoming new professionals to reinforce its ranks. Initially situated in Toowoomba, the revitalised team gives a fresh perspective and dynamic approach to supporting the seniors community.

Moreover, TASC was successful in gaining Queensland Government funding to increase their SLASS service beyond its current catchment, expanding the service beyond Toowoomba to include the Ipswich metropolitan area and the large geographic area encompassing the Ipswich hinterland (see Map 5).

This funding was awarded at the end of March 2023, spurring recruitment activities that spanned the remainder of the financial year, successfully broadening the SLASS team to encompass six skilled solicitors and four social workers (as at 30 June), enhancing the program's capability.

Understanding SLASS' core mission

At the core of SLASS is a deep-seated commitment to assist individuals aged 60 and above (50 for First Nations People) who may be facing forms of mistreatment or exploitation, including financial misconduct.

The service operates as a vital support structure, providing a confidential environment to address potential elder abuse cases with sensitivity, diligence and respect.

Central to its success is the hybrid legal-social work model it employs. This model is a collaborative approach that combines the expertise of solicitors and social workers to facilitate a comprehensive support system which addresses both the legal and socio-emotional aspects of elder abuse.

Additionally, over the course of the year the SLASS team has continued to foster health justice partnerships by connecting with healthcare providers to identify and address potential cases of elder abuse, facilitating a more holistic approach to senior's care.

To the fullest extent possible the SLASS program ensures that individuals maintain autonomy over decisions pertaining to their welfare.

Community engagement and awareness

A vital component of SLASS operations involves fostering a community that is well-informed and vigilant about elder abuse. Through proactive engagement and educational initiatives, the program seeks to elevate public awareness about the forms and prevalence of elder abuse and the available avenues for help. By developing and disseminating strategies that assist seniors in recognising and mitigating potential risks, SLASS is actively working to create a landscape where safety and knowledge converge, enhancing the well-being of older people.

Key initiatives in community engagement during the 22/23 financial year included participation in community events, regular networking across the health district and working with aged care facilities.

Seniors Legal and Support Service case study: Navigating justice for a victim of financial elder abuse

Background:

Amid a difficult time marked by terminal medical diagnoses, Daphne, a 78-year-old woman grappling with multiple incurable conditions including cancer found herself in a distressing situation of financial abuse. Despite her significant health challenges, Daphne has maintained her full decision-making capacity and was in the process of applying for voluntary assisted dying in Queensland.

Challenge:

In this emotionally fragile period, Daphne's vulnerability was exploited by a family member's partner, who she had trusted with her bank details and certain health support roles. This individual defrauded Daphne, illicitly withdrawing substantial amounts from her bank account, accruing a loan under a false identity, and deceptively manipulating her Centrelink payments. Consequently, Daphne's financial stability was deeply undermined, further exacerbating her mental and emotional strain and leaving her with scarce resources for essential needs.

Intervention:

Amid this crisis, a SLASS social worker and solicitor promptly stepped in to provide comprehensive support to Daphne. Their intervention encompassed a myriad of services, including:

- Offering legal advice and support regarding Daphne's rights and potential courses of action.
- Facilitating connections and continuous follow-up with external agencies for additional assistance for services beyond SLASS' scope.
- Conducting a psychosocial assessment and providing essential counselling support throughout this taxing period.
- Extending advocacy support, particularly with government entities like Centrelink to alleviate the financial and emotional strain exacerbated by the fraud.
- Delivering consistent support and assistance during interactions with police prosecutors, the court, and victim liaison officers.

Outcomes:

This multifaceted intervention empowered Daphne to regain control and articulate her desires confidently. She received extensive support to manage her profound experiences of grief and loss. Crucially, her reporting obligations to Centrelink were revised, eliminating the need for frequent meetings and unwarranted deductions from her payments due to the fraudulent activities. The legal process is now underway, with the offending family member awaiting sentencing for their egregious exploitation and abuse of Daphne.

Conclusion:

This case underscores the critical role of organisations like TASC in championing the rights of vulnerable individuals like Daphne, providing holistic support beyond legal counsel to include emotional and psychological assistance. Their timely intervention facilitated the restoration of Daphne's financial stability, mental well-being, and ensured the initiation of legal proceedings against the perpetrator, reaffirming the importance of comprehensive, empathetic support in navigating the complexities of justice and well-being.

National Redress Scheme Support

About the service:

This service performs the important role of assisting survivors of institutional childhood sexual abuse to apply to the National Redress Scheme and navigate the practical and emotional challenges that can arise from this process.

Redress Support Services are in operation across Australia, with TASC funded to provide this vital service to our local Toowoomba, Darling Downs and Maranoa communities.

The National Redress Scheme, established in response to recommendations from the Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse, offers the opportunity for eligible survivors to receive financial support, counselling and an apology or acknowledgement directly from the institution responsible for their abuse.

Trauma informed practice:

Given the complexity of each individual trauma experience for survivors, the process of applying for Redress support can be an incredibly daunting and challenging one.

For many survivors, this may be the first time they have ever fully shared the details of their abuse experience and had the opportunity to be supported to thoroughly reflect on the lifelong impacts it has had on them.

This challenging and confronting personal journey is often made more complex due to the dynamic of survivors having to rely on and trust in the institution of Government to treat their personal stories through a trauma informed lens, with sensitivity and respect to make a fair offer of Redress support.

Our Redress caseworkers support survivors with both the practical support to navigate what is at times a complex system, and the emotional support to assist them to look after their general health and wellbeing throughout their journey.

Building awareness and trust:

Given the sensitive and timebound nature of the National Redress Scheme, significant service focus must also be maintained on building awareness and trust in the Scheme in our local communities.

As such, part of our responsibility as a Redress Support Service is to ensure that as many people as possible are aware of the Scheme and that local support is available to assist people to apply during the duration of the Scheme.

In the first year of service delivery, significant time has been spent engaging in community dialogues, creating partnerships with local entities, and fostering rapport with other community service providers in the region.

Focus is placed on connecting with services that provide assistance to vulnerable groups within our community, including Forgotten Australians, Former Child Migrants, First Nations Australians, people with disability, and people with mental health difficulties.

The year ahead:

As the Scheme matures, our ongoing focus for our service is to cultivate an environment where survivors, their families, and the wider community are empowered to share, understand, and seek the assistance currently available.

In order to achieve this, the TASC Redress Support Service strives to ensure that every survivor that seeks out our support finds not just assistance to engage with the Scheme but also a space of genuine understanding and empathy.

Overview of TASC's Corporate Services Team

The past fiscal year witnessed the dedication of our Corporate Services Team in supporting staff to deliver the best possible services and outcomes for our clients. Their commitment was underlined by consistent high levels of service, ensuring optimal internal operations.

Key achievements

Streamlining operations

With an eye on evolving technological landscapes, service delivery dynamics, and programme demands, the Corporate Services Team has undertaken a comprehensive restructuring. This shift optimises operations and financial management, simplifying internal stakeholder interaction, eliminating task duplications, and enabling the team to zero in on their primary responsibilities.

Emphasising quality assurance

We transitioned the Quality Assurance function into a distinct role, deviating from its previous integration into other positions. This focused approach not only ensures audit compliance but also intensifies our pursuit of continuous improvement across the organisation. Special emphasis has been placed on service enhancement, data management, in-house service audits, and systems management.

Key challenges

Recruitment difficulties: Managing human resources, particularly around recruitment posed substantial challenges. These were accentuated by the prevailing tight labour market conditions. However, we have fostered stronger collaborations with third-party recruitment agencies, amplifying our internal recruitment capabilities.

Cybersecurity concerns

The fiscal year underscored the need for robust cybersecurity, considering the spike in high-profile data breaches across Australian firms. TASC, too, witnessed an upsurge in phishing and related social engineering attacks targeting staff emails. Our proactive stance, aided by the expertise of our ICT providers, ensured these threats were effectively countered.

Data quality and integration

With the revitalised focus of the quality assurance role, we identified data silos and system integration as potential improvement areas. Explorations are underway to revamp TASC's data management systems.

Future direction

Data management and security: The 2024 fiscal year is set to prioritise the refinement of data collection and management processes. Our objective is the deployment of an integrated system that enhances data security and provides a holistic view of organisational data. This will decisively shape our decision-making processes and reporting mechanisms.

Outcomes-driven focus

In tandem with our data integration endeavours, TASC is geared to amplify its emphasis on measuring outcomes and impacts across all programmes. This will further our commitment to tangible results and sustainable programs.

Our marketing activities

TASC National's marketing team has been diligently working to strengthen and enhance our communication channels, with a significant emphasis on our website which serves as a vital interface between our clients and our services.

A focal point of these efforts was the systematic overhaul of our website, an initiative informed by detailed feedback gathered from internal stakeholder surveys and discussions.

This exercise enabled us to identify and address both strengths and areas requiring improvement within the existing website structure and content.

A structured analysis led to the re-evaluation of the site's navigational properties and informational coherence, with a clear objective to facilitate user-friendliness and accessibility.

To improve clarity and to better assist clients with varying literacy levels, the service pages were revised to clearly outline the services we offer, where we operate and the services which sit outside our scope of operations. A concerted effort to maintain simplicity in language was made with the goal to present a minimum readability level of grade 6, aligning with our commitment to accessibility.

Several user-centric features were integrated into the website. Among these was the 'quick exit' button, a crucial tool for users who might need to leave our site quickly due to sensitive situations. We also embedded tools designed to enhance accessibility for those with visual impairments, further underscoring our commitment to inclusivity.

Furthermore, we have introduced measures to enhance transparency and build trust with our clients. Now, when potential clients approach TASC, they are greeted with clear expectations, an aspect vitally important given the barriers many of them face when seeking assistance.

Additionally, the website now facilitates more direct and effective pathways for client assistance through collaborative efforts with TASC's intake teams, which have culminated in the development of streamlined web forms for various services.

Parallel to our digital enhancements, we took measures to maintain consistency in TASC National's branding across both printed and digital platforms. We provided our frontline staff with new promotional materials and supported them with resources for their presentations and community engagements.

However, this journey was not without its challenges. Changes in certain key staff positions temporarily affected our access to comprehensive program information. To navigate this, we intensified our internal liaison, involving more direct face-to-face discussions and leveraging foundational documents as references. This approach was instrumental in obtaining accurate details, and it also paved the way for creating supportive tools like geographical maps and enhanced presentations for our teams.

In conclusion, the focus for the year was on refining and amplifying our communication efforts. These deliberate and informed changes are aimed at optimising the experience for our clients and fortifying TASC National's engagement strategies.

The addition of user centric tools to TASC's website, such as a quick exit button and accessibility tools will enhance client experience and trust.

My experience was great, considering the short time frame in which we had to turn up to the Tribunal. TASC's QSTARS team was easily understandable and understood, and also quick to reply and patient. Overall very professional.

Risk and governance

In the past year, TASC has revisited and adjusted its structures and strategies concerning corporate governance and risk management, particularly in light of emerging cyber security risks, its evolving structure and expansion of services.

Strategic approach

While TASC has historically relied on the comprehensive risk management guide offered by NACLC for its risk mitigation procedures, the growth and diversification in the organisation's services necessitated a review and evolution of its corporate governance and risk strategies. Compliance with the NACLC risk management guide will still underpin our efforts.

Activities and initiatives

Board workshops

Understanding the importance of effective corporate governance, the Board took the initiative to organise in-depth workshops. These sessions were tailored to address and align corporate governance practices within the contemporary scope of TASC's operations, ensuring that governance structures are aptly suited for its current scale and future ambitions.

Risk management framework development

Recognising the dynamic nature of risks in the industry, TASC is charting out a plan to devise a comprehensive risk management framework in the upcoming fiscal year. The objective of this initiative is to bolster TASC's preparedness and responsiveness to potential risks. Complementing this will be a series of future workshops designed to keep the framework updated and relevant.

Strategic plan formation

TASC is in the process of crafting a new strategic plan, placing emphasis on measurable impact goals. Guided by a set of established principles, this strategy also places a premium on evidence-based and data-informed practices, ensuring that TASC's actions and initiatives are grounded in solid, empirical foundations. The current strategic plan TASC is operating under was developed prior to COVID, and despite having a year to run it was deemed necessary to revise it due to the disruption across communities, technology and the workforce caused by COVID.

Participation in the Better Boards Conference

To ensure alignment with best practices and trends in the not-for-profit sector, several TASC Directors marked their presence at the Better Boards Conference in June 2023. This participation was aimed at gathering insights and networking with industry peers to ensure TASC's governance practices are in line with sector standards.

Audit & Risk Committee introduction

In a strategic move to enhance oversight and governance, TASC introduced an Audit & Risk Committee. Scheduled to meet quarterly, this committee is tasked with closely monitoring and providing recommendations on key areas including audits, financial reports, identification and management of emerging risks, cybersecurity measures, strategies for talent retention, and assessing organisational culture. By having a dedicated committee:

- Board meetings gain focus: The centralisation of risk and audit discussions within the committee will enable board meetings to prioritise and concentrate on overarching strategic decisions and organisational direction.
- Specialised focus on risk and governance: With dedicated personnel and resources, there's an expectation of a more detailed and concentrated approach to risk management and corporate governance.

Board commitment

These initiatives and structural changes echo the board's consistent commitment to refining TASC's governance and risk management practices, ensuring both immediate and long-term effectiveness.

Through these focused measures and forward-looking strategies, TASC is laying down a solid foundation for a balanced and robust approach to risk management and corporate governance, ensuring resilience and adaptability.

Treasurer's report

I am pleased to present the TASC National audited financial statements for the period ended 30th June 2023.

TASC National finished the 2022-2023 financial year with a surplus of $198K on an annual turnover of $4.77M with an unqualified audit. Revenue for the year was consistent with the previous financial year. From an expense point of view employee costs have also been consistent with last year. However, non-employee costs have increased by 22% driven by programming and planning expenses, travel, and depreciation.

TASC National receives core funding through grant income administered by State and Federal Government departments. Funds for some programs have been carried over to be completed in 2023-2024. Grant funding forms the majority of TASC National's revenue.

The 2022-2023 year saw TASC National explore new services in new regions, particularly firming its roots in the Wide Bay region. TASC National continues to operate efficiently with adequate resources to meet ongoing commitments and is well placed to take up new opportunities and meet future challenges. This year saw an improved internal focus on quality control of processes, systems and services which contributed to more detailed and comprehensive reporting by TASC National.

In the past financial year, we achieved a positive financial result. The Board, working closely with the Management Team, continues to be fully dedicated to realising the objectives outlined in the Strategic Plan. TASC National board are aware of their responsibility to meet the benchmarks of funding agencies. A rigorous focus on operational efficiency and cost-effectiveness is a priority, and at the heart of our endeavours is our unwavering dedication to serving the community members who rely on our assistance.

TASC NATIONAL LIMITED
NOTES TO THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
FOR THE YEAR ENDED 30 JUNE 2023

NOTE 1: SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The financial statements cover TASC National Limited as an individual entity. The financial statements are presented in Australian dollars, which is TASC National Limited's functional and presentation currency.

TASC National Limited is a not-for-profit unlisted public company limited by guarantee, incorporated and domiciled in Australia.

The principal accounting policies adopted in the preparation of the financial statements are set out below. These policies have been consistently applied to all the years presented, unless otherwise stated.

(a) Basis of preparation

In the director's opinion, the company is not a reporting entity because there are no users dependent on general purpose financial statements.

These are special purpose financial statements that have been prepared for the purposes of complying with the Australian Charities and Not-for-profits Commission Act 2012 and associated regulations, and the Corporations Act 2001 requirements to prepare and distribute financial statements to the members of TASC National Limited. The directors have determined that the accounting policies adopted are appropriate to meet the needs of the members of TASC National Limited.

These financial statements have been prepared in accordance with the recognition and measurement requirements specified by the Australian Accounting Standards and Interpretations issued by the Australian Accounting Standards Board ('AASB') and the disclosure requirements of AASB 101 'Presentation of Financial Statements', AASB 107 'Statement of Cash Flows', AASB 108 'Accounting Policies, Changes in Accounting Estimates and Errors', AASB 1048 'Interpretation of Standards', AASB124 'Related Party Disclosures' and AASB 1054 'Australian Additional Disclosures', as appropriate for not-for-profit oriented entities.

Historical cost convention

The financial statements have been prepared under the historical cost convention.

Current and non-current classification

Assets and liabilities are presented in the statement of financial position based on current and non-current classification.

An asset is classified as current when: it is either expected to be realised or intended to be sold or consumed in the company's normal operating cycle; it is held primarily for the purpose of trading; it is expected to be realised within 12 months after the reporting period; or the asset is cash or cash equivalent unless restricted from being exchanged or used to settle a liability for at least 12 months after the reporting period. All other assets are classified as non-current.

A liability is classified as current when: it is either expected to be settled in the company's normal operating cycle; it is held primarily for the purpose of trading; it is due to be settled within 12 months after the reporting period; or there is no unconditional right to defer the settlement of the liability for at least 12 months after the reporting period. All other liabilities are classified as non-current.

(b) Adoption of new, revised Accounting Standards and Interpretations

The Company has adopted all of the new, revised or amending Accounting Standards and Interpretations issued by the Australian Accounting Standards Board ('AASB') that are mandatory for the current reporting period.

Any new, revised or amending Accounting Standards or Interpretations that are not yet mandatory have not been early adopted.

TASC NATIONAL LIMITED
NOTES TO THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

(c) Critical accounting judgements, estimates and assumptions

The preparation of the financial statements requires management to make judgements, estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts in the financial statements. Management continually evaluates its judgements and estimates in relation to assets, liabilities, contingent liabilities, revenue and expenses.

Management bases its judgements, estimates and assumptions on historical experience and on other various factors, including expectations of future events; management believes to be reasonable under the circumstances. The resulting accounting judgements and estimates will seldom equal the related actual results.

The judgements, estimates and assumptions that have a significant risk of causing a material adjustment to the carrying amounts of assets and liabilities (refer to the respective notes) within the next financial year are discussed below.

Key estimates – grants

The directors evaluate the grants each year to determine if the conditions associated with the grant has been met in order to calculate the proportion of funding to be classified as revenue and the portion to be classified as deferred income.

Key estimates – useful lives of assets

The company determines the estimated useful lives and relates depreciation for its property, plant and equipment. The useful lives could change significantly as a result of technical innovations or some other event. The depreciation charges will increase where the useful lives are less than previously estimates lives, or technically obsolete or non-strategic assets that have been abandoned or sold will be written off or down.

Key estimates – provisions

As discussed in Note 1(i), the liability for employee benefits expected to be settled more than 12 months from the reporting date are recognised and measured at the present value of the estimated future cash flows to be made in respect of all employees at the reporting date. In determining the present value of the liability, estimates of attrition rates and pay increases through promotion and inflation have been taken into account.

Key estimates – Lease term

The lease term is a significant component in the measurement of both the right-of-use asset and lease liability. Judgement is exercised in determining whether there is reasonable certainty that an option to extend the lease or purchase the underlying asset will be exercised, or an option to terminate the lease will not be exercised, when ascertaining the periods to be included in the lease term. In determining the lease term, all facts and circumstances that create an economical incentive to exercise an extension option, or not to exercise a termination option, are considered at the lease commencement date. Factors considered may include the importance of the asset to the company's operations; comparison of terms and conditions to prevailing market rates; incurrance of significant penalties; existence of significant leasehold improvements; and the costs and disruption to replace the asset. The company reassesses whether it is reasonably certain to exercise an extension option, or not exercise a termination option, if there is a significant event or significant change in circumstances.

(d) Income Tax

No provision for income tax has been raised as the company is exempt from income tax under Division 50 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997.

(e) Cash and Cash Equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents include cash on hand, deposits held at-call with banks and other short-term highly liquid investments with original maturities of six months or less.

(f) Trade and other receivables

Trade and other receivables are measured at amortised cost less any allowance for expected credit losses.

(g) Revenue recognition

Revenue from contracts with customers

Revenue is recognised at an amount that reflects the consideration to which the company is expected to be entitled in exchange for transferring goods or services to a customer. For each contract with a customer, the company: identifies the contract with a customer; identifies the performance obligations in the contract; determines the transaction price which takes into account estimates of variable consideration and the time value of money; allocates the transaction price to the separate performance obligations on the basis of the relative stand-alone selling price of each distinct good or service to be delivered; and recognises revenue when or as each performance obligation is satisfied in a manner that depicts the transfer to the customer of the goods or services promised.

Variable consideration within the transaction price, if any, reflects concessions provided to the customer such as discounts, rebates and refunds, any potential bonuses receivable from the customer and any other contingent events. Such estimates are determined using either the 'expected value' or 'most likely amount' method. The measurement of variable consideration is subject to a constraining principle whereby revenue will only be recognised to the extent that it is highly probable that a significant reversal in the amount of cumulative revenue recognised will not occur. The measurement constraint continues until the uncertainty associated with the variable consideration is subsequently resolved. Amounts received that are subject to the constraining principle are recognised as a refund liability.

Grants

Grant revenue is recognised in profit or loss when the company satisfies the performance obligations stated within the funding agreements. If conditions are attached to the grant which must be satisfied before the company is eligible to retain the contribution, the grant will be recognised in the statement of financial position as a liability until those conditions are satisfied.

Interest

Interest revenue is recognised as interest accrues using the effective interest method. This is a method of calculating the amortised cost of a financial asset and allocating the interest income over the relevant period using the effective interest rate, which is the rate that exactly discounts estimated future cash receipts through the expected life of the financial asset to the net carrying amount of the financial asset.

Other revenue

Other revenue is recognised when it is received or when the right to receive payment is established.

Volunteer services

The company has elected not to recognise volunteer services as either revenue or other form of contribution received. As such, any related consumption or capitalisation of such resources received is also not recognised.

(h) Property, Plant and Equipment

Each class of property, plant and equipment is carried at cost less, where applicable, any accumulated depreciation and impairment losses.

Plant and equipment

Plant and equipment are measured on the cost basis less depreciation and any impairment losses.

The carrying amount of plant and equipment is reviewed annually by the committee to ensure it is not in excess of the recoverable amount from these assets. The recoverable amount is assessed on the basis of the expected net cash flows that will be received from the asset's employment and subsequent disposal. The expected net cash flows have not been discounted to present values in determining recoverable amounts.

Plant and equipment that have been contributed at no cost, or for nominal cost are valued and recognised at the fair value of the asset at the date it is acquired.

Depreciation

The depreciable amount of all fixed assets, are depreciated on a straight line or diminishing value basis over the asset's useful life to the company commencing from the time the asset is held ready for use.

The depreciation rates used for each class of depreciable assets are:

Class of fixed asset	Depreciation rates	Depreciation basis
Leasehold improvements	33.3 %	Straight Line
Plant and equipment	5-25 %	Straight Line
Furniture, Fixtures and Fittings	5-25 %	Straight Line
Computer Equipment	20-25 %	Straight Line
Motor Vehicles	18.75%	Diminishing Value

The assets' residual value and useful lives are reviewed and adjusted if appropriate, at each balance sheet date.

An asset's carrying amount is written down immediately to its recoverable amount if the asset's carrying amount is greater than its estimated recoverable amount.

Gains and losses on disposals are determined by comparing proceeds with the carrying amount. These gains or losses are included in the income statement. When revalued assets are sold, amounts included in the revaluation reserve relating to that asset are transferred to retained earnings.

Right-of-use assets

A right-of-use asset is recognised at the commencement date of a lease. The right-of-use asset is measured at cost, which comprises the initial amount of the lease liability, adjusted for, as applicable, any lease payments made at or before the commencement date net of any lease incentives received, any initial direct costs incurred, and, except where included in the cost of inventories, an estimate of costs expected to be incurred for dismantling and removing the underlying asset, and restoring the site or asset.

Right-of-use assets are depreciated on a straight-line basis over the unexpired period of the lease or the estimated useful life of the asset, whichever is the shorter. Where the company expects to obtain ownership of the leased asset at the end of the lease term, the depreciation is over its estimated useful life. Right-of use assets are subject to impairment or adjusted for any remeasurement of lease liabilities.

The company has elected not to recognise a right-of-use asset and corresponding lease liability for short-term leases with terms of 12 months or less and leases of low-value assets. Lease payments on these assets are expensed to profit or loss as incurred.

(i) Employee Benefits

Provision is made for the company's liability for employee benefits arising from services rendered by employees to balance date. Employee benefits that are expected to be settled within one year have been measured at the amounts expected to be paid when the liability is settled. Employee benefits payable later than one year have been measured at the present value of the estimated future cash outflows to be made for those benefits. Those cash flows are discounted using market yields on national government bonds with terms to maturity that match the expected timing of cash flows.

NOTES TO THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

(j) Trade Creditors and Other Payables

Trade creditors and other payables are recognised at the nominal transaction value without taking into account the time value of money.

(k) Lease Liabilities

A lease liability is recognised at the commencement date of a lease. The lease liability is initially recognised at the present value of the lease payments to be made over the term of the lease, discounted using the interest rate implicit in the lease or, if that rate cannot be readily determined, the company's incremental borrowing rate. Lease payments comprise of fixed payments less any lease incentives receivable, variable lease payments that depend on an index or a rate, amounts expected to be paid under residual value guarantees, exercise price of a purchase option when the exercise of the option is reasonably certain to occur, and any anticipated termination penalties. The variable lease payments that do not depend on an index or a rate are expensed in the period in which they are incurred.

Lease liabilities are measured at amortised cost using the effective interest method. The carrying amounts are remeasured if there is a change in the following: future lease payments arising from a change in an index or a rate used; residual guarantee; lease term; certainty of a purchase option and termination penalties. When a lease liability is remeasured, an adjustment is made to the corresponding right-of-use asset, or to profit or loss if the carrying amount of the right-of-use asset is fully written down.

Short-term leases

Lease payments for short-term leases, where substantially all of the risks and benefits remain with the lessor, are charged as expenses on a straight-line basis over the life of the annual lease term. There was no material impact of the new lease standard AASB 16 Leases due to the short-term nature of these leases.

Finance leases are capitalised, recognising an asset and a liability equal to the present value of the minimum lease payments, including any guaranteed residual values. Lease payments are allocated between the reduction of the lease liability and the interest expense for the period.

(l) Fair value measurement

When an asset or liability, financial or non-financial, is measured at fair value for recognition or disclosure purposes, the fair value is based on the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date; and assumes that the transaction will take place either in the principal market; or in the absence of a principal market, in the most advantageous market.

(m) Goods and Services Tax (GST)

Revenues, expenses and assets are recognised net of the amount of GST, except where the amount of GST incurred is not recoverable from the Tax Office. In these circumstances, the GST is recognised as part of the cost of acquisition of the asset or as part of an item of the expense. Receivables and payables in the statement of financial position are shown inclusive of GST.

Cash flows are presented in the statement of cash flows on a gross basis, except for the GST components of investing and financing activities, which are disclosed as operating cash flows.

(n) Comparative Figures

Where required by Accounting Standards, comparative figures have been adjusted to conform with changes in presentation for the current financial year.

When the company applies an accounting policy retrospectively, makes a retrospective restatement or

(o) New Accounting Standards and Interpretations not yet mandatory or early adopted

Australian Accounting Standards and Interpretations that have recently been issued or amended but are not yet mandatory, have not been early adopted by the company for the annual reporting period ended 30 June 2023. The company has not yet assessed the impact of these new or amended Accounting Standards and Interpretations.

(p) Economic Dependence

The Entity is dependent upon the ongoing receipt of Federal and State Government grants to ensure the ongoing continuance of its programs. At the date of this report, management has no reason to believe that this financial support will not continue.

INDEPENDENT AUDITOR'S REPORT TO THE MEMBERS OF

Opinion

I have audited the financial report of TASC National Limited (the Company), which comprises the statement of financial position as at 30 June 2023, the statement of comprehensive income, statement of changes in equity and statement of cash flows for the year then ended, and notes to the financial statements, including a summary of significant accounting policies.

In my opinion, the accompanying financial report of TASC National Limited, is in accordance with Division 60 of the Australian Charities and Not-for-Profit Commission Act 2012, including:

- Giving a true and fair view of the registered entity's financial position as at 30 June 2023 and of its financial performance for the year then ended; and
- Complying with the Australian Accounting Standards to the extent described in Note 1, and Division 60 of the Australian Charities and Not-for-Profit Commission Regulation 2013.

Basis for Opinion

I conducted my audit in accordance with Australian Auditing Standards. My responsibilities under those standards are further described in the Auditor's Responsibilities for the Audit of the Financial Report section of my report. I am independent of the Entity in accordance with the ethical requirements of the Corporations Act 2001 and the ethical requirements of the Accounting Professional and Ethical Standards Board's APES 110 Code of Ethics for Professional Accountants (the Code) that are relevant to my audit of the financial report in Australia. I have also fulfilled my other ethical responsibilities in accordance with the Code.

I believe that the audit evidence I have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for my opinion.

Emphasis of matter – basis of accounting

I draw attention to Note 1 to the financial report, which describes the basis of accounting. The financial report has been prepared to assist TASC National Limited to meet the requirements of the applicable legislation. As a result, the financial report may not be suitable for another purpose. My opinion is not modified in respect of this matter.

Responsibilities of the directors for the financial report

The directors of the Company are responsible for the preparation of the financial report that gives a true and fair view in accordance with the financial reporting requirements of the Australian Charities and Not-for-Profit Commission Act 2012 and for such internal control as the directors determine is necessary to enable the preparation of the financial report that gives a true and fair view and is free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

In preparing the financial report, the directors are responsible for assessing the Company's ability to continue as a going concern, disclosing, as applicable, matters relating to going concern and using the going concern basis of accounting unless management either intends to liquidate the Entity or to cease operations, or has no realistic alternative but to do so.

Auditor's responsibilities for the audit of the financial report

My objective is to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial report as a whole is free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error, and to issue an auditor's report that includes my opinion. Reasonable assurance is a high level of assurance, but is not a guarantee that an audit conducted in accordance with the Australian Auditing Standards will always detect a material misstatement when it exists. Misstatements can arise from fraud or error and are considered material if, individually or in the aggregate, they could reasonably be expected to influence the economic decisions of users taken on the basis of this financial report.

As part of an audit in accordance with Australian Auditing Standards, I exercise professional judgement and maintain professional scepticism throughout the audit. I also:

- Identify and assess the risks of material misstatement of the financial report, whether due to fraud or error, design and perform audit procedures responsive to those risks, and obtain audit evidence that is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for my opinion. The risk of not detecting a material misstatement resulting from fraud is higher than for one resulting from error, as fraud may involve collusion, forgery, intentional omissions, misrepresentations, or the override of internal control.
- Obtain an understanding of internal control relevant to the audit in order to design audit procedure that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the registered entity's internal control.
- Evaluate the appropriateness of accounting polices used and the reasonableness of accounting estimates and related disclosures made by the Company.
- Conclude on the appropriateness of the Company's use of the going concern basis or accounting and, based on the audit evidence obtained, whether a material uncertainty exists related to events or conditions that may cast significant doubt on the Company's ability to continue as a going concern. If I conclude that a material uncertainty exists, I am required to draw attention in my auditor's report to the related disclosures in the financial report or, if such disclosures are inadequate, to modify my opinion. My conclusions are based on the audit evidence obtained up to the date of my auditor's report. However, future events or conditions may cause the Company to cease to continue as a going concern.
- Evaluate the overall presentation, structure and content of the financial report, including the disclosures, and whether the financial report represents the underlying transactions and events in a manner that achieves a true and fair view.

I communicate with the Company regarding, among other matters, the planned scope and timing of the audit and significant audit findings, including any significant deficiencies in internal control that I identify during my audit.

Other matter

The financial report of TASC National Limited for the year ended 30 June 2022 was audited by another auditor who expressed on an un-modified opinion on the financial report on 18 October 2022.
