Special Announcement

We regret to inform our readers that our popular "Thumbs Up / Thumbs Down" feature has been discontinued.

Readers repeatedly tell us how much they love searching each issue and reading these authentic rants and raves submitted by loyal Penny Power readers. Even Rick & Dave of The Hawk fame (99.9 FM) have a weekly segment where they discussed their favorite submission.

However, it has come to our attention that in today's world, people no longer are facing issues that annoy them or others that they want to celebrate.

Apparently, adults no longer get peeved. Kids are happy and are hoping to do more homework on weekends. The world is working just fine. No need to compose a witty Thumb to submit to Penny Power.

However, if you feel strongly that "Thumbs Up / Thumbs Down" should not be discontinued -- happy April Fool's Day! It's not going away. In fact, we want to hear about your rants and raves. Get writing! The more Thumbs, the better!! We know you must have something you want to tell the world!

xerces.org
The Xerces Society for Invertebrate Conservation

Artist's rendition of the now-extinct Xerces blue butterfly by Noel Leas.

95% to 97% of all animals on Earth are invertebrates.

Last week's announcement of higher overwintering monarch numbers in Mexico was welcome news, even though the numbers are still well below historic norms. We need everyone to help create monarch habitat. That means more pesticide-free native milkweeds and nectar flowers. If we act now, monarchs can recover.

Our name (which is pronounced Zer-sees) comes from the now-extinct Xerces blue butterfly (Glaucopsyche xerces), the first butterfly known to go extinct in North America as a result of human activities. The Xerces blue's habitat was destroyed by development in the sand dunes of San Francisco, and the species was declared extinct by the 1940s.

GARDEN TIPS

The "Buzz" about Native Plants

By Carol Schroding,
Gardening Enthusiast and former owner of Northeast Native Perennials

Spring-Flowering Native Trees

Decorating the early spring landscape are some of our most beautiful and beneficial native trees. One of my favorite early bloomers is the American or Wild Plum (Prunus americana), with its papery delicate white flowers around mid-April. In its natural state it wants to sucker but can be easily trained into one beautiful landscape specimen. Its small fruits are edible by humans and small mammals as well as a number of bird species. For fruiting, it is best to have two trees so that they can be cross-pollinated by the bees. They can take up to 5-9 years to bear fruit. They host 435 species of butterfly and moth species.

It is hard to beat the striking pink blooms of the Eastern Redbud (Cercis canadensis). The flowers push through the bark on all but the oldest branches, giving them an amazing look in bloom! Then come the large heart-shaped leaves which can get up to 6 in. across. Dry brown seedpods develop after bloom and persist through winter. Redbud is a critical host plant of over 20 butterfly species. It prefers well-drained soil but will tolerate short-term flooding that occurs along small streams.

Although most descriptions of Serviceberry (Amelanchier sp.) are as a spreading shrub or small tree, most of the species and cultivars on the market are trained as small trees and grow quite well as that. The white blooms in early spring resemble a white cloud followed by its pink or red edible berries in June (hence the other common name Juneberry) that are highly attractive to birds such as the Cedar Waxwing, Baltimore Orioles and Rose-breasted Grosbeaks among 35-40 species who treasure these fruits. One hundred thirteen species of butterflies and moths use this as a host plant in our area.

Next time: More spring-flowering native trees!
